

Charles Stahler

Charles Stahler serves as the CEO of National Safety & Risk, bringing over 30 years of experience to the company in the fields of customer service and management, and as a safety professional. Before transitioning to his role at NSR, Charles held the position of Director of Operations at Reliable Inspection Co. Within this role, he was responsible for new business, client relations, and day to day operations. Prior to this promotion, Charles oversaw quality control and managed a team of loss control field consultants.

Before entering the insurance loss control business, Charles' career included time at both Cox Communications and Coca-Cola. He currently serves on the board of directors for Galexa Home Builders and the Underwriter's Services Association. Charles is also the incumbent President of ARCO.
